SCHEMES REPORTS & PHOTOS

English Language Lab

The Department of English has set up an English Language Lab equipped with state-of-the-art computer systems, each of which is loaded with English Learning Software Program. Furthermore, every workstation is furnished with headsets and microphones, ensuring that all degree students have the means to listen to and speak in English without causing any disruptions to their fellow students.

The English Language Lab serves several important purposes for students.

- Students can improve their listening comprehension skills by engaging with a variety of audio materials.
- They can also work on pronunciation and fluency by listening to native speakers and practicing their own speech with the help of the microphone and headset.
- The lab provides a safe and controlled environment for students to practice speaking in English. They can engage in conversations, record their speech, and receive feedback to enhance their spoken English.
- English language lab software offers exercises and activities to strengthen grammar and expand vocabulary. Students can work on specific language skills and build a solid foundation.
- The lab allows students to practice reading comprehension through texts, articles, and other written materials. Additionally, they can work on writing skills, including essays, reports, and creative writing.
- The lab supports self-paced learning, allowing students to progress at their own speed and focus on areas that need improvement.
- Instructors can monitor students' progress, assign exercises, and offer guidance through a teacher's console, making it easier to provide support and adapt instruction to students' needs.

MANAGEMENT GAMES

Business Games refers to the training method for managers. This form of training is based on an artificial environment that simulates the real situation in the management of the organization.

Learning should be enjoyable and listening to a person talk is one of many methods of learning. However, it is less suitable for people who prefer a more practical, active approach. Management games help make learning interactive, enjoyable and realistic with key learning points to take back to the workplace.

However, there are many reasons for running management games including:

- A game simulates 'real life' conditions of what the training is trying to communicate
- It is enjoyable with lots of learning in a short space of time
- It generates interest in the subject and is rich in experiential learning
- The game allows participants to easily interact, socialise, and network with others
- It provides much evidence for the facilitator and participants to debrief and learn from.
